Reflections on Readings for the
The Feast of the Baptism of the Lord

"This Is My Beloved Son, With Whom I Am Well Pleased"

This Sunday is the Feast of the Baptism of the Lord. It marks the close of our Christmas season, the beginning of Jesus' public ministry, and liturgically, the return to ordinary time.

This feast is the revelation of Jesus as the Anointed One, the Messiah, the beloved Son of God. Our readings today draw an unbroken line from the Old Testament prophecies of Isaiah, prefiguring "the chosen one in whom I am pleased", the one who will "open the eyes of the blind, to bring out prisoners from confinement."

Our first reading (Isaiah 42:1-4, 6-7) is an excerpt from one of four poems of Isaiah called the "servant songs". Isaiah wrote of a meek and humble servant, anointed by God as "a covenant to the people." He will be a "light to the nations". It is this prophecy that comes alive in the Baptism of Jesus that we hear in today's Gospel.

Our Epistle reading (Acts 10:34-38) is an excerpt of a speech given by St. Peter to the household of Cornelius, a Gentile Roman Centurion. It would have been highly improper for a Jew of Peter's stature to enter into the home of an unclean Gentile. And yet, Peter recognized the will of God in "showing no partiality" to "whoever fears him." At the end of this speech, Peter baptized Cornelius and his entire household. Thus, Jesus was a "light to the nations", not only to the Jews.

Our Gospel reading (Matthew 3:13-17) is Matthew's account of the Baptism of the Lord. John wanted to refuse to baptize Jesus but Jesus insisted, so as "to fulfill all righteousness"; in other words, to fulfill the Old Testament prophecies. Jesus may have had in mind today's prophecy from Isaiah. Even though Jesus had no need for baptism, as He did not know sin, He chose to enter into a sinful world in solidarity with those He sought to save. At the baptism's conclusion, the heavens opened and the Spirit of God descended upon Him.

In a sense, Jesus' act of entering into a very human baptism is an extension of His entering into the human condition, to become one with us, to live among us. He entered into this dark, messy world of ours in order to "bring out the prisoners from confinement" - a confinement of sin and darkness.

Catholic Social Teaching

Preferential Option for the Poor and Vulnerable

As we continue looking at the themes of Catholic Social Teaching, we come now to the third theme, The Preferential Option for the Poor and Vulnerable.

This phrase is relatively new, but the idea is as old as our scriptures.

For example, Psalm 34:7 reads,

"This poor one cried out and the LORD heard, and from all his distress he saved him."

And, of course, the Gospels are filled with examples of Jesus teaching, healing, and socializing with the poor, the ill, and the most vulnerable.

"God's heart has a special place for the poor, so much so that he himself 'became poor.' (2 Cor 8:9). Salvation came to us from the 'yes' uttered by a lowly maiden from a small town on the fringes of a great empire. The Savior was born in a manger, in the midst of animals, like children of poor families; he was presented at the Temple along with two turtledoves, the offering made by those who could not afford a lamb; he was raised in a home of ordinary workers and worked with his own hands to earn his bread. When he began to preach the Kingdom, crowds of the dispossessed followed him, illustrating his words: "The Spirit of the Lord is upon me, because he has anointed me to preach good news to the poor" (Lk4:18). He assured those burdened by sorrow and crushed by poverty that God has a special place for them in his heart: "Blessed are you poor, yours is the kingdom of God" (Lk6:20); he made himself one of them: "I was hungry and you gave me food to eat," and he taught them that mercy towards all of these is the key to heaven (Mt 25:5)."

~ Pope Francis

Our responsibility to also hear the cry of the poor is not only to do good for the individual, but leads to the common good of society. In Pope Leo XIV's the Apostolic Exhortation Dilexi te, the Holy Father affirms: "I am convinced that the preferential choice for the poor is a source of extraordinary renewal both for the Church and for society, if we can only set ourselves free of our self-centeredness and open our ears to their cry." We have the responsibility to relieve the plight of the poor and also to bring about justice by addressing the ways that oppression is built into the systems that our communities rely upon. Documents of Vatican II call for a change in international economic structures and stress the right of the poor to share the earth's goods.

There are at least five different "senses" of poverty in the Christian tradition: material poverty, an unfulfilled spiritual longing, religious vows of poverty, material simplicity, and poverty of spirit – that is, choosing to live with a spirit united with the poor. One can see from this list that some forms of poverty contain objective disvalue (e.g. material poverty, spiritual poverty), while others contain value (religious vow of poverty, material simplicity, poverty of spirit).

This preferential option for the poor is not "optional" for Christians. The Bishops of the United States write,

"A special emphasis must be given to the Church's preferential option for the poor. While the common good embraces all, those who are weak, vulnerable, and most in need deserve preferential concern. A basic moral test for any society is how it treats those who are most vulnerable."

Peace,
Fr. Tim
